PRESIDENT'S FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ADVISORY BOARD

22 February 1983

25X1

[Redacted]

The President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board has been tasked by the President to examine how well the intelligence community is organized to detect, analyze, and counter the hostile intelligence threat in its totality.

As part of that effort, the Board would like you to provide a report on how the Central Intelligence Agency is organized to respond to various aspects of the hostile intelligence threat. We are particularly interested in: (1) your internal and external relationships; (2) the number of analysts you have working in counterintelligence - their background and experience in this and other intelligence-related areas; (3) your role in the collection of counterintelligence; and (4) the efforts underway to counter the hostile threat.

The Board would also be interested in your identifying problem areas and giving your thoughts on how the functioning of the Intelligence Community could be better improved to respond to this threat.

Sincerely,

Carol A. Patrick
